

ABSTRACT

An inkjet recording method having: jetting recording ink containing a color material onto a recording medium by a recording head, and colorless ink for improving gloss onto the recording medium by the recording head, to perform image formation; and determining an adhered amount of the colorless ink per unit area in response to an adhered amount of the recording ink per unit area.